About Seminar

India is known for its amazing environmental diversity. Yet, throughout the country growing populations are overstraining natural resources. Problems such as loss of bio-diversity, deforestation, desertification, over-grazing, and air and water pollution and increasing numbers of toxic compounds worsen the situation. It was not all negative but how the global community can work together and bring proven and workable solutions to the problems. We have an obligation to secure the environment for future generations and there must be equal rights for all to access a decent quality of life.

The Seminar goals are to make young people and their educators think and become increasingly convinced that we can all be actors of change. Students learn through the process of being involved with their environment and their community and gain a sense of responsibility towards the needs of our planet and its inhabitants. The Seminar will also give the opportunity to meet with other institutions interested in making young people understand the issues we face in India and in creating a network of people willing to take action
