Structure and Disciplinary Contents of M.A. Sociology

All the courses are designed to impart disciplinary fundamentals of sociology through a curated reading list that draws amply from the rich and diverse tradition of sociological writing –classical as well as contemporary. These courses also feature vibrant illustrative material in the form of case studies meant to make the concepts and theories vivid, the learning process engaging and illustrate the discipline in action in terms of empirical investigations. The courses are designed to draw micro-itineraries across the syllabus to form complex inter-connections.

Program Learning Outcomes

The Post graduate program in sociology is premised on an axiom that a graduate is not mere product of a system. On the contrary, the graduate attributes are the most concrete manifestation of the spirit the entire program, its operationalization through institutions and collective and concerted efforts of all the stake holders. Every other feature of programme is fused into this. Hence graduate attributes, qualification descriptors and programme learning outcomes may not be described separately since they are innately interconnected.

Teaching Learning Process

Multiple pedagogic techniques are used in imparting the knowledge both within and outside the classrooms. Listed below are some such techniques:

- Lectures
- Tutorials
- Power-point presentations
- Project work
- Documentary Films on relevant topics
- Debates, Discussions, Quiz
- Talks /workshops
- Interaction with experts
- Outstation field trips..... Surveys designs
- Internships

Assessment Methods

Besides the formal system of University exams held at the end of each semesters well as mid-semester and class tests that are held regularly, the students are also assessed on the basis of the following:

- written assignments
- Projects Reports
- Presentations
- Participation in class discussions
- Ability to think critically and creatively to solve the problems
- Application of classroom concepts during fieldwork
- Reflexive Thinking
- Engagement with peers
- Participation in extra and co-curricular activities
- Critical assessment of Articles /Books etc.

Objective

There is much discussion these days on the reorientation of Sociological research and the contextualisation of Sociology to the experience of western countries. The objective of this course is to sensitize student to the salience of the comparative perspective in Sociology by highlighting the historical and social context of its development, key issues and themes as well as theoretical concerns and by contextualising them to the Indian situation

Unit	Content
1	The salience of the comparative perspective in the social sciences general and in sociology in particular; indices of comparison : culture, nation, class, gender
2	Historical and social context of the emergence and growth of sociology in the West; the Eurocentric moorings of Western sociological tradition; Americanization of sociology; national traditions in sociology
3	Central themes in comparative sociology : modernity: development; diversity, pluralism and multiculturalism; nation-state; environment; gender; globalization.
4	Theoretical concerns and debates in comparative sociology Problems of theorizing in sociology in comparative and cross cultural perspective
5	The Indian context ; the bearing of the colonial context on the development of sociology in India; the debate on decolonization, contextualization and indigenization; the focus on national and regional concerns

GENDER AND SOCIETY
A071008T

Marks/Credit: 75/5

Objective:

This course will focus on the study of women from a sociological perspective, (including historical, cultural views) and feminist thought and methodologies. The purpose of the paper is to equip a student of sociology to understand gender in all its dimensions and not merely as women's issues. The students are encouraged to take this course to understand Indian society and the changes occurring in the context of equality, power and politics. The paper is designed to help students of sociology understand both theory and methodology and also the impact of society and culture on gender roles in different cultural settings and economic groups of women. It would be interesting to give examples of regional, ethnic and religious differences to enable the student to grasp social realities.

Unit	Content
1	Social Construction of Gender: Gender vs. Biology. Equality vs. Difference. Women in Family. Socialization and Gender, Culture vs. Gender, Gender roles. Sexual Division of Labour, Masculinity vs. Femininity
2	Perspectives on Women in Society: Liberal, Radical, Marxian, Socialist, Postmodernist and the Third Wave.
3	Major women's movement and weakness and evaluation of women's movement.
4	Women and Society in India: Demographic Profile, Economy, Polity, Education, and Health: Crime and Violence against Women: Women Empowerment
5	The changing status of India: pre colonial and post colonial; The role of state and NGOs.
